Under the rules you agree to as an Australian Unity health insurance member, if you are entitled to claim damages/compensation for your condition/injury from another source you are required to:

- take reasonable steps to pursue your claim and include in your claim any Hospital, Medical or Extras expenses in respect of which benefits are or may be payable (including in the future) by Australian Unity in relation to the condition/injury;
- keep Australian Unity updated on the progress of your claim and notify Australian Unity of the outcome of your claim (or any future claim);
- reimburse Australian Unity for benefits paid or payable in the future in relation to this condition/injury if you receive compensation in relation to that condition/injury, to; and
- provide all information relevant to your claim as requested by Australian Unity.

If your claim for compensation is unsuccessful you will not be required to make a repayment to Australian Unity under the above rule. Provision of written legal or other communication confirming denial of compensation will be required. If you do not take reasonable steps to pursue your right to compensation, benefits will not be payable for treatment of your condition/injury.

Referral to a lawyer

If you answered 'yes' to the questions in section 3, 4 or 5 above, and you would like to understand your rights to compensation, we can refer you to a Slater and Gordon lawyer. If you tick this box we will securely provide them with your name, phone number and email address and inform them that you may have a worker's compensation/ Transport Accident/ Public Liability or other kind of claim. They will get in contact with you to discuss providing you with confidential, obligation-free, legal advice on your possible entitlement to compensation. We do not receive any payment for referring you to Slater and Gordon and we do not pay Slater and Gordon. If you engage Slater and Gordon they will act for you, not Australian Unity. Engaging Slater and Gordon is voluntary and does not impact your future relationship with Australian Unity. You can opt out anytime by calling 03 8682 7307 or email healthcompensation@australianunity.com.au
